"We work two or three jobs when we are paid for one, just to keep the city running."

-Justin Granados, SEIU 521 Member and Maintenance Worker for the City of Scotts Valley

Workers like Justin Granados are forced to cover more than one job on a single salary. As the City of Scotts Valley stalls on negotiations workers continue to ensure public services for nearly 12,000 residents. We need our community's support to ensure quality public services are delivered amidst a surge in demand.

Call the City Council and tell them to invest in public services and workers.

Mayor Derek Timm: (831) 239-9203 * Councilman Jack Dilles: (831) 566-3180
Councilman Randy Johnson: (831) 438-0633 * Councilwoman Donna Lind: (831) 438-4187

"Our working conditions are a health hazard to residents and workers. Just look at our aging equipment and you will see why the Scotts Valley budget poses a threat to our community."

As decade old equipment fails workers are forced to fix assets, delaying or disrupting the delivery of services when residents need access. Physical damage is now overcoming public works facilities, exposing workers and residents to hazardous elements like mold, asbestos and unwanted foreign materials.
